CELEBRATION PARK

Allen, Texas, one of the fastest growing cities in Texas, is very aggressive with planning for parks and open space for their community. One prime example is the development of Celebration Park.

The scope of work began with the development of a Master Plan of the park for the City of Allen Parks and Recreation Department. This effort included community and staff input and development of a program and theme for the park. This 100 acre site was planned to accommodate large scale community events and league sports. The centerpiece of the park is a "great Lawn" that provides flexible space for large scale events.

With crowds of 30,000, the park celebrated its grand opening June 28, 2003, as it played host to the City of Allen's USA Celebration. The previously agricultural land was transformed into a facility with landmark tensile fabric architecture, brightly colored walls, fifteen soccer fields, a baseball four-plex, tennis courts, restrooms, concessions, parking, entry wall, woodland trail and a large "tent-like" pavilion poised at the edge of a small lake. "Kidmania," a state of the art playground and sprayground, rounds out the park's amenities. The park had a construction cost of $8.3 M. Phase II adds two baseball fields, tennis courts, a restroom / concession building and additional parking to the project and is budgeted for $3.9 M.
